Menopause Balance Complex*

Dietary Supplement

The natural way to ease hot flashes, occasional sleeplessness, and mood swings*

THE CHALLENGE

Hormone fluctuations before and during menopause often orchestrate a “chain reaction” of effects on a woman’s body chemistry. A natural process, perimenopause is the transition period between a woman’s reproductive years and the cessation of ovarian function (menopause). This transition lasts anywhere from four to ten years.

Common Perimenopause and Menopause Symptoms

- Moodiness
- Sleep Disturbances
- Hot Flashes
- Irritability
- Menstrual Changes
- Bloating/Water Retention
- Mild to Moderate Depression

In a recent study† of perimenopausal and menopausal women, 73% reported hot flashes, 66% night sweats, 53% insomnia, and 50% mood changes. Additionally, these menopausal symptoms may continue beyond menopause into the postmenopausal years.

- Studies show that populations who consume soy regularly over a lifetime report fewer menopausal symptoms. In Asian countries, where consumption of soy foods is estimated at 20–80 mg per day, women report a smoother transition through menopause than women in Western cultures, where soy is consumed at 1–3 mg per day.
- Menopause Balance Complex* also provides additional phytoestrogens from dong quai, red clover, and licorice.
